

in autumn we go to blankenberg papa's feet flip-flop and he leans on his stick because papa is so slow I race onto the beach in my rubber boots jellyfish stare their blue eyeballs up from the wet sand but I dash between them out to the grey waves

who whisper and shush and tear their lace frills to pieces blue pigments were first ground from lapis lazuli cobalt and azurite. blue derives from the old high german blao meaning shimmering or lustrous. ancient egyptians associated blue with the sky and divinity. it protected their dead in the tombs. around the mediterranean people wear blue amulets against misfortune. the impressionists used blue to create mood. in music the blues signify melancholy.
